

Decoding Your Financial Aid Award Letter

Your financial aid award may include grants, loans, and work study. Grants and scholarships are “gift aid” and do not need to be repaid. Loans and work-study are “self-help aid,” funds that need to be earned or repaid. Every institution packages its financial aid award differently. Included here are only sample amounts and options. Your financial aid package might include various combinations of the financial aid listed below, and may include others that aren’t listed here.

You may have to accept or decline each award.

- 1 You won't need to repay awards, grants, or scholarships from your school. Before you accept this aid, make sure you clearly understand whether this money is renewable from year-to-year or will only be awarded to you during your first year.
  - 2 This grant is based on financial need, cost of attendance, and student enrollment status; the amount can change yearly.
  - 3 This is a need-based grant awarded to eligible undergraduate students at Maine schools.
  - 4 Some schools offer this grant to eligible students based on financial need.
  - 5 You are responsible for finding and applying for an eligible job and working the hours required to earn the awarded amount. You will typically be paid bi-weekly based on the number of hours worked.
  - 6 The federal government pays interest on this loan while you are in school and for 6 months after you graduate. These loans are in your name.
  - 7 Interest for unsubsidized loans begins accruing immediately. You'll have to pay an origination fee.
  - 8 This is a federal loan for parents and graduate/professional students. They can borrow any amount up to the cost of attendance minus financial aid, and repayment options vary. Applicants must have their credit approved to receive this loan. There is a loan fee which is a percentage of the total loan amount.
- caution The inclusion of PLUS/Alternative loans in a financial aid award package is misleading. These options should be considered as ways to bridge the gap between financial aid and the cost of education, and should be explored along with state or private loan options, school payment plans, or part-time work.

If your estimated total cost is more than what you can pay, consider non-federal loan options including PLUS/Alternative loans, state loans, and private loans. If your institution offers you competitive institutional loans, subtract those from your total with federal loans. Please keep in mind that the loan amounts do not include interest that will accrue in the future.

* These costs are generally similar from college to college.
